2:00PM – 3:00PM
and re-aired

7:00PM – 8:00PM
Eastern Time

WILDLAND URBAN INTERFACE FIRES – “AN OVERVIEW FOR RESPONDERS”

The second program in this two-part series will contain information on “Value Programming” – how firefighters are trained to look at, and think about fire. Since there are differences between structural and wildland fires, we will discuss “what to do first, what can be saved, what is beyond hope, and how to live to tell the tale.” We will also provide information on how firefighters can help their communities raise awareness of risks and mitigation to make them safer places to live.

CONSEQUENCE MANAGEMENT NEWS, EQUIPMENT, &
 TRAINING (CoMNET) MAGAZINE (originally aired 12/10/03)

Featured Stories:

Conducting A Mass Fatality Exercise: Part II in a series on mass fatality management, CoMNET explains the importance of planning and exercising for mass fatalities associated with a WMD incident. CoMNET was invited to New York City to observe the first nationally sponsored Mass Fatality Exercise. The event was hosted by the New York City Police Department. Participants included the NYPD, New York City Office of Chief Medical Examiner, Special Operations Team, and the Department of Environmental Protection, Hazardous Materials Division. The drill was designed to assess the team’s ability to respond to a mass fatality incident and operate in a contaminated, crime scene environment. The joint agency fatality team included personnel from the NYPD Crime Scene Unit, the NYPD Emergency Services Hazmat Unit, the NYPD Missing Persons Unit, the OCME Special Operations Team, and the Department of Environmental Protection, Hazardous Materials Division. The exercise was based on guidelines from SBCCOM and Titan Corporation’s National Security Solutions.

Recognizing the Signs of a WMD Incident CoMNET visits the US Army Medical Research Institute of Chemical Defense (USAMRICD) to explore the Medical Management of Chemical and Biological Casualties Course and the Field Management of Chemical and Biological Casualties Course. USAMRICD's mission includes fundamental and applied research in the pharmacology, physiology, toxicology, pathology, and biochemistry of chemical agents and their medical countermeasures. In addition to research, the Institute, in partnership with the US Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID), educates health care providers in the medical management of chemical and biological agent casualties. The USAMRICD supports a Chemical/Biological Rapid Response Team (C/B-RRT), supports and trains Theater Army Medical Laboratory personnel, and maintains a unique chemical surety facility.

Dealing with Victims of a WMD Incident: CoMNET visits St. Joseph's University Early Responders Distance Learning Center to learn about the WMD-PRO: Panic Response Operations Course. This Course addresses the potential for panic associated with emergency situations, specifically Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD) incidents. As a First Responder, there is a need to be able to develop a basic understanding of panic and its relationship with fear. Skills are needed to prevent fear from escalating into panic. Learning to identify the nonverbal cues signaling the possibility of panic before, during and following a WMD incident is crucial when dealing with victims. Responders should know how to observe behavior in order to understand what the victim is feeling, and how to help the victim get through their feelings long enough to prevent panic.

EXERCISING – PRACTICE! PRACTICE! PRACTICE! THEN WHAT? – PART I

This program first aired February 9, 2000 as a two-hour program, Part II will air next week.

The program explores the world of shifting from planning and training to drills and exercises. We will discuss types of drills and exercises; developing scenarios and support materials; and managing the exercise process to include evaluating the results. Two documentaries will be featured: one, a local community exercise and the other, a State exercise. Whether you are new to exercising, or could use a refresher, these two programs will cover the points needed to practice successfully.
